This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

A "complete list of public documents" has long been desired by librarians and others who have had occasion to consult the publications of the United States Government. The many difficulties in the way of compiling such a work, however, have been deemed insurmountable even by some of the most experienced librarians. Two editions of a Public-documents Checklist have been issued, neither of which purports to be complete. It is believed to be impossible, at this late date, to make an absolutely complete list, but, barring errors, I do claim that the work now nearing completion, in three parts, is a complete list of the publications of the United States Government known to have been printed.

The work of making such a list, in so far as the miscellaneous publications of the Executive Departments and other offices of the Government were concerned, was entirely original. There were two great difficulties in the way of such an undertaking. One was due to the fact that the Government had been printing documents for one hundred years before any systematic attempt was made to catalogue them. Even this catalogue (Poore's Descriptive Catalogue of Government Publications, 1774–1881) was of little assistance because of many omissions in listing the departmental publications. But, perhaps, the chief difficulty was that no scheme had been devised for a ready and systematic reference to such documents, as had been done in the case of the Congressional numbered documents, by Dr. Ames's invention of serial numbers. My idea was that a scheme, similar to the serial numbers, could be evolved and applied to the departmental series of documents so as to render reference to them simple and easy. This difficult problem was solved by an employee of this office, and his scheme for the arrangement of the departmental series has been satisfactorily applied to the public documents library in this office (the largest of its character in the United States). It may be readily adopted in any public documents library. Its scope and detail will be fully explained in the third part, hereafter to be published.

No trouble or expense is being spared in the effort to make the new list accurate and more comprehensive than any heretofore printed. The libraries of this and other cities are being thoroughly examined for documents not listed in the printed catalogues.

It will be published in three parts, and will then be consolidated and published in one volume with a general index.

The first part will contain a list of the documents of the First to the Fourteenth Congress, both inclusive, covering the period from 1789 to 1817.

The third part will contain a list of the reports and miscellaneous publications of the Executive Departments, bureaus, and other offices of the Government, printed without Congressional numbers.

The second part, which is submitted herewith, contains a list of, and an index to, the documents of the Fifteenth to the Fifty-second Congress, both inclusive. It is issued first because it is deemed of greatest interest. The list is not extended beyond the Fifty-second Congress, because all documents printed by the United States Government since the beginning of the Fifty third Congress are entered in the catalogues compiled and published by this office, under the act approved January 12, 1895, relating to the public printing, binding, and the distribution of documents.

SCOPE OF SECOND PART

The "Congressional series," or "sheep set," as it is often called, includes, from the beginning of the Fifteenth to the close of the Fifty-second Congress, 3,150 volumes of from 75 to 2,300 pages each, bound in sheepskin, ranging in size from narrow octavo to folio and wide quarto, and containing 96,875 separately numbered documents.

A glance at the index herein will convince one of the variety of subjects treated, while a careful examination of the volumes themselves will reveal an equal amount of variety in size, binding, titling, paging, numbering, and arrangement.

SERIAL NUMBERS

The plan of gathering together in one systematic "series" this valuable but confused mass of Government literature was conceived by Dr. John G. Ames, and his device of applying a "running" or "serial" number to the volumes in a uniform manner, beginning with the first session of the Fifteenth Congress, has proved a most effectual help in locating the volumes, and has also made possible the simple yet lucid reference used in the index to this work. Reference to the tables will show the practical application of the scheme.

Dr. Ames did not use the "serial numbers" in the first edition of the Checklist (List of Congressional documents from Fifteenth to Fifty-first Congress, etc., prepared by John G. Ames, 1892), but in preparing the "copy" for a second edition he affixed the numbers. This "copy" he generously turned over to the Superintendent of Documents, by whom it was adopted and used in the second edition of the Checklist (Checklist of Public Documents containing Debates and Proceedings of Congress from First to Fifty-third Congress, etc., second edition, revised and enlarged, issued by F. A. Crandall, 1895).

The tabular form of listing, instituted in the second edition, has been adopted in this list, with slight change in arrangement and the omission of "titles," except where they are necessary for identification of the document.

The "serial numbers" herein are identical with those in that issue, with the following exceptions:

Because of the criticism which the applying of this "serial number," beginning with the first session of the Fifteenth Congress, called forth, especially in a public document (serial No. 3550, v. 1, pp. 1119, 1120), some explanation seems necessary, though its practical use needs no justification.

On the 8th of December, 1813, it was resolved in the House of Representatives—

> That henceforward all messages and communications from the President of the United States, all letters from the several departments of the Government, all motions and resolutions offered for the consideration of the House, all reports of committees of the House, and all other papers which in the usual course of proceeding or by special order of the House, shall be printed in octavo fold and separately from the Journals, shall have their pages numbered in one continuous series of numbers, commencing and terminating with each session.

On the 14th instant it was ordered—

> That the documents which were the subject of the order of the House of the 8th instant, instead of having their pages numbered in one continuous series of numbers from the commencement to the termination of each session, shall be themselves numbered in a regular series in the order of time in which they shall be directed to be printed: The number of each document to be distinctly marked on the top of the title-page and every subsequent page, in addition to the number of each page of such document.

Although this action was taken at the second session of the Thirteenth Congress, and was immediately applied by the House to some of its documents, and while it is true that the Senate adopted a similar scheme at the second session of the Fourteenth Congress for some of its publications, still, it is also true that in both Houses the orders as to size and numbering were not strictly adhered to until the commencement of the first session of the Fifteenth Congress, for up to that time in both Houses appear a series of folio documents to which no numbers were affixed, and which could not, therefore, be embraced in a plan for "serial numbering." On the 3d of March, 1817, all the documents were brought into the numbered series by the passage of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives be directed, in making any further contracts for the printing of Congress, to stipulate and require that the same, excepting only the bills, or when otherwise specially directed by either House, shall be done in royal octavo form, the size of the pages to be the same as those of the laws of the United States, and that when any tables will not admit, with the use of a small type, of compression into that size, they shall be so printed as to fold conveniently into the volume.

REPEATING THE "DOCUMENT NUMBER"

The provision in the resolution of the 14th of December, 1813, that the number of each document shall be "distinctly marked on the top of the title-page and every subsequent page, in addition to the number of each page of such document," was observed to the commencement of the second session of the Thirty-third Congress, when the "document number" was dropped from all but the first page of the document. As no evidence can be found of the repeal of the resolution, it is difficult to understand why such an easily complied with and useful enactment should be ignored.

Practical experience has demonstrated the fact that not only should the "document number" appear at the head of each page of a document, but that a continuous volume paging should be carried at the bottom of the page. This "volume paging" would in no way interfere with the "document paging," but would make "volumes" out of what are now mere bound collections of separate documents, greatly facilitating the work of indexing. Had a continuous paging been used, a much more direct reference could have been made in this index than has been possible under existing circumstances, and had the law been adhered to as to the "document number" being placed on every page of a document much time and annoyance would be saved those using it as it is

PAPERS OF FIRST FOURTEEN CONGRESSES

The lack of information as to the documents and reports printed by order of the first fourteen Congresses, while greatly to be deplored, is easily accounted for. The printing during the very early Congresses was done without any general provision of law as to what should be printed. The discretion in this matter was reposed in the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives, and the limited editions thus ordered account for the scarcity of the original prints. Even as early as 1829, when an attempt was made to reprint the more important of these early papers, it was reported to Representative Barringer, by the Clerk of the House, that from 1793 to 1803 not a vestige of manuscript, and only a scattered few printed copies, were extant. (See Congressional Debates, v. 5, p. 376.)

The destruction of the Capitol in 1814 cost most of the remaining surplus of all the documents, and heightened the interest in a reprint of them in a more accessible form. Year after year attempts were made to accomplish this end; but political feuds and personal animosities created much dissension and spirited debate, and it was not until March 2, 1831, that the following bill was presented for the third reading and passed:

> Be it enacted, etc., That the Clerk of the House of Representatives hereby is authorized and directed to subscribe for 750 copies of the compilation of the Congressional documents proposed to be made by Gales & Seaton: Provided, That the documents shall be selected under the direction of the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House: And provided also, That the price paid for the printing of copies shall be at the rate not exceeding that of the price paid to the printer of Congress for printing the documents of the two Houses.

In a speech on that date, in reply to a scathing opposing tirade on the part of Mr. Jesse Speight, of North Carolina, Mr. William Drayton, of South Carolina, said:

> The documents referred to comprehend those state papers of the Executive and its departments, and those reports of both branches of Congress, which are of peculiar importance, from their throwing light upon the principles of the interior and exterior policy of our Government during the long interval which elapsed from the adoption of the Federal Constitution to the year 1813. The contents of these papers are known to but few. Of many of them there are but two or three copies now extant, and others of them are only to be found in manuscript in the possession of a small number of persons. Surely the records of the United States, upon subjects which ought to be familiar to every Senator and Representative, should be easily attainable, and yet the reverse is notoriously the fact.

The "American State Papers," in 38 volumes, which were the outcome of this and subsequent legislation, are doubtless among the most valuable public documents ever provided for by Congress. They stand as a monument to their editors, Walter Lowrie and Mathew St. Clair Clarke, and vindicate the ability of the printers, Gales & Seaton, while arguing by contrast very unfavorably for other contemporaneous efforts in book making both by Gales & Seaton and by others.

No complete list or collection of the original prints of these papers is now extant, but when it is realized that these "American State Papers" contain reprints of the important documents of all classes from 1789 to 1833, and of some classes up to 1838, also many others which had never before been printed; when their convenient form, excellent execution, and liberal indexing are taken into account, the questions of "how many" and "what were" the papers of the earlier Congresses will no longer disturb the minds of the public in general; though no compilation or reprint can ever take the place of or lessen the interest in the original prints in the eyes of librarians and bibliographers.

The list of original prints of these papers, now being compiled as the first part of the more comprehensive work on public documents to be issued from this office, will be issued separately in the near future.

ARRANGEMENT OF THE DOCUMENTS

The separating of the committee reports from the other documents was begun by the House at the commencement of the Sixteenth Congress, but the Senate did not adopt any plan of arrangement until the Thirtieth Congress, first session, when the following plan was adopted by each House:

Journals.

Executive documents, containing communications from the President or the Executive departments.

Miscellaneous documents, containing amendments, resolutions, petitions, memorials, and special reports of all kinds other than of committees.

Committee reports.

NUMBERING OF SERIES

A new set of numbers is applied to the documents of each session, whereas the reports are numbered consecutively through an entire Congress. Previous to the Forty-seventh Congress the House reports received new numbers at each session.

INDEXING

Indexing was begun at the Fifteenth Congress, second session, by the Senate, and at the Sixteenth Congress, first session, by the House. In both Houses, up to the Seventeenth Congress, first session, the indexes were mere tables of contents, contained only in the first volume of the series indexed. After that period they were contained in each volume, though it was many years before they really deserved the name of "index."

TITLE-PAGES AND "BACK TITLES"

The appended list (Appendix 2) contains all the necessary bibliographical matter which could not be conveniently introduced into the tables. As will be seen by reference to this list, the systematic arrangement of the volumes is greatly impeded by the lack of title-pages or their peculiar and varied construction. The "back titles" or "binder's titles," which present the only means of identification when no title pages appear, are even more aggravating in their variety. For example, the top "band" was adopted for the "series title," and reads "State Papers, Eighteenth Congress, first session," for volume 6, but volume 7 of the same series reads "Commercial Regulations." It seems to have been the rule to drop the series title on the back whenever the document filled a volume, even when no series title-page was provided.

THE ANNOTATED INDEX

The several series of fragmentary indexes published in the collected volumes are so inept and inadequate that Dr. A. R. Spofford stated, in a published paper in 1895, that the public documents of the United States would be several thousand sealed books to people and officials alike, if it were not for half a dozen "living indexes" in Washington. If "living indexes" could live forever, possibly they would suffice for the needs of statesmen and students who find in the public documents the chief source of the knowledge which the discharge of their high functions calls for. But since "living indexes," wonderful and admirable though they may be, are but mortal, while printed records are practically immortal, it has seemed exceedingly desirable that a general annotated index to the volumes of the Congressional series, from the period when they became collectible and cognizable, namely, the beginning of the Fifteenth Congress, should be constructed and published. This work indeed has been long recognized as the chief bibliographical need of American historians, publicists, and legislators, but it was a work so formidable that those who were most competent to undertake it, and who were therefore most familiar with its magnitude and difficulties, have shrunk from the task. Poore's ponderous Descriptive Catalogue of Government Publications, 1881, was indeed undertaken and carried through, but it is only a costly and almost useless monument to misguided industry and zeal.

At last, however, the work has been taken up with the purpose of carrying it through upon lines laid down by the accumulated experience of librarians and bibliographers.

The result is before the reader, and it is to be hoped that it may prove in use all that it has been in intention.

It has been constructed, with but few exceptions, from the headings of the various documents, no attempt having been made to analyze any but the annual reports of the Executive departments, and these only to bring out the reports of subordinate officers, special papers being ignored. In the completed work, toward which this publication is but a contribution, all these reports will be thoroughly analyzed in their departmental form, which, except in binding, is identical with the Congressional edition.

The index also includes references to the American State Papers by subject-matter of the volumes. In the completed work these papers will be carefully analyzed, but their full indexing obviated, to some extent, the withholding of this publication until that could be accomplished.

Unfamiliarity with the contents of the documents will excuse any errors, omissions, and inconsistencies which may characterize the index; but it is believed that, though lacking in symmetry and comprehensiveness, it will yet open up to practical usage thousands of valuable papers which for years have been buried.

EXCEPTIONS

The endeavor has been to extricate the more important documents from the scattered mass of worthless matter which composes nearly one-half of the Congressional set. Entries therefore have not been made for any document or report included under the following headings unless they were of historic character: Appropriations (Indian or minor); condemned cannon; contested elections; memorials; petitions; private claims; public buildings.

Despite these exceptions, fully 50,000 documents and reports have been indexed under authors, subjects, and titles.

No entries have been made under committees, or members submitting reports, unless the report is generally known by the name of such member or committee.

The bibliographical notes contained in the index have been most carefully written, and will be found invaluable in tracing a subject. If a suggestion might be offered as to the use of this work, it would be that the index be used in tracing a subject rather than direct consultation of the tables, as in the latter case much valuable information contained in the "notes" in the index would be lost.

A catalogue of this vast series, which would require the undivided efforts of several trained cataloguers for many years, will now be practically unnecessary, for while this publication is not a catalogue in any proper sense of the word, yet as a reference work it covers much the same ground.

L. C. Ferrell,
Superintendent of Documents.

[NOTE.—H. res. of Aug. 3, 1854, directed the printing of these reports "during the recess," i. e., between Aug. 7, 1854, adjournment 1st sess., and Dec. 4, 1854, assembling of 2d sess., 33d Cong. Presumably serial nos. 736, 737, and 739 were printed under this order, though the report of Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War, which is the first paper in v. 1, is dated Feb. 27, 1855. The House, on Feb. 14, and the Senate, on Feb. 24, 1855, each ordered 10,000 copies of these reports, specifying additional matter to be included. This accounts for the nonappearance of serial no. 738 (v. 3 of first projected series, 8°), as the matter contained in the eleven 4° volumes, printed under these later orders, includes not only the contents of serial nos. 736, 737, and 739, but that listed to appear as 738, and much additional matter. Serial nos. 758–768 comprise the Senate print of these eleven volumes, while the final or twelfth volume appears as serial no. 992, and is designated as "Supplement to v. 1." The House print includes serial nos. 791–801, for volumes 1 to 11, "v. 12, in 2 books," appearing as serial nos. 1054 and 1055.]

Patent Office:
[NOTE.—Jan. 11, 1871, a joint resolution containing the following provisions was adopted: "That the publication of the abstracts and specifications and of the engravings heretofore accompanying the annual report of Commissioner of Patents be discontinued, after the publication of that portion of the report for 1869 for which the plates have already been prepared," etc. (See annual reports Commissioner of Patents, 1870 and 1871, discussing this resolution.) Notwithstanding the provisions of the law, vol. 4, 1869, and vols. 2 and 3, 1870 and 1871, containing the mechanical part of the report, were issued in the departmental or cloth edition, though omitted from Congressional set. Beginning January, 1872, the report was divided into three parts: The Official Gazette, issued weekly (which see); Annual report of Commissioner to Congress for calendar year, including "General index to Official Gazette" for period covered by report (which see); and Specifications and drawings of patents, issued weekly, May 30, 1871 to July 18, 1872, and in monthly volumes since then (which see). From 1872 to 1878 inclusive, the report made to Congress for the calendar year was the only report made by the Commissioner; but from 1879 to date he has also made an annual report for the fiscal year, which will be found included in annual report of Secretary of Interior.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Centennial Exhibition, 1876:
[NOTE.—The first 9 volumes of the report of the Exhibition were issued only in a non-Congressional edition, though the provision of the act of Mar. 3, 1859, that "1,550 copies of any document ordered by Congress shall be printed, and that number shall be known as the usual number," etc. (R. S., 3792), was then in force. No explanation can be found for this violation of the law. Volumes 10 and 11, containing the report of board on behalf of the Executive Departments, were afterwards submitted to Congress, Feb. 9, 1877, and scheduled to appear as 44th Cong., 2d sess., H. ex. doc. 40, pts. 1 and 2, serial nos. 1756 and 1757. They were, however, never printed in that form, but by joint resolution of Mar. 3, 1883, were issued as 47th Cong., 2d sess., H. mis. doc. 20, pts. 1 and 2, serial nos. 2119 and 2120.]
